

2017 Leadership Day

Restorative Strategies & Tools to Create Respect, Cooperation, and Responsibility

Presenters: Cynthia Kaitfors-Smith & Nancy Wayne from Fresno Pacific University

The presenters will be sharing strategies on restorative discipline. The information presented will help transform your classroom and school into an inclusive engaging environment that encourages student involvement, creates a sense of belonging and supports academic risk-taking. It is especially effective with those students who are most resistant to authority by involving them in processes that empower them to be responsible and accountable. Restorative Strategies transforms discipline into learning experiences that decrease stress, improve effectiveness, and build relationships.

All participants will receive two books and additional materials to assist in implementing the strategies shared:

Discipline that Restores: Strategies to Create Respect, Cooperation, and Responsibility in the Classroom

Making Things Right: Activities that Teach Restorative Justice, Conflict Resolution, Mediation, and Discipline
